ASTRONOMER FACCIA SAYS MOON
DISPROVES PEARY'S CLAIMS.

Famous Italian Calculates That on April Sixth, When Explorer Took His Observations, the Planet Which He Must Have Used as a Basis Was Below the Polar Horizon and Could Not Have Been Seen by Him.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

ROME, Sept. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to the well-known astronomer, Sig. Francesco Faccia, the claim of Commander Peary's discovery of the North Pole is disproved. Faccia's calculations show that on April 6, 1909, when Peary claimed to have discovered the pole, the moon was not visible at the pole. Faccia, who is a member of the Italian astronomical society, has calculated that the moon was at least one degree below the horizon at the time Peary made his observations. Faccia's calculations are based on the fact that the moon was at a distance of 238,855 miles from the earth on April 6, 1909. Faccia's calculations show that the moon was at a distance of 238,855 miles from the earth on April 6, 1909. Dr. Cook used a map to illustrate the route followed. Asked why he had not repeated this on board the Roosevelt, Peary said that Dr. Cook had told him to say nothing about it until the Roosevelt reached civilization.

SHEDS MORE LIGHT
ON POLAR DISPUTE.

[Associated Press Wire Report.] ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The controversy over the discovery of the North Pole has been shed more light on by the arrival of the steamer Thetis from Seattle Harbor, where the correspondents learned from two members of Commander Peary's expedition that Dr. Peary had accepted no formal invitation except to the banquet under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. When Harry Whitney, George Norton and Larned went to Seattle on the Thetis to bring news of the discovery, they found that Dr. Peary had accepted no formal invitation except to the banquet under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. When Harry Whitney, George Norton and Larned went to Seattle on the Thetis to bring news of the discovery, they found that Dr. Peary had accepted no formal invitation except to the banquet under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

WAY, WAY NORTH.

Peary said that the Eskimos told him they had been "way, way north." Some of the Peary party at Seattle Harbor would discuss what had been learned from Harry Whitney, as Commander Peary had given orders that the Cook controversy must not be mentioned. It was commonly reported at Seattle Harbor, however, that the Cook controversy must not be mentioned.

Friends of Dr. Cook have pointed out that when Commander Peary returned from the pole, he did not mention the name of the pole. Prof. McMillan, who had gone to establish a base of supplies at Cape Morris, said that he did not mention the name of the pole. Prof. McMillan, who had gone to establish a base of supplies at Cape Morris, said that he did not mention the name of the pole.

It was at Seattle Harbor that Commander Peary told the story of his journey to a score of more correspondents. He will head on more trips to the Arctic, for, for the matter, to the Antarctic.

His work in the ice fields is finished. "I have accomplished the mission of my life," said the commander. "I shall always be interested in Arctic exploration, but it must now be left to younger men."

Commander Peary often broke his narrative to call upon Prof. Donald McMillan, naturalist and geologist, to relate some incident of the trip. No less interesting than Peary's dash to the pole were the discoveries of Prof. McMillan of relics and stores of seven previous Arctic expeditions, those of Dr. Greely, in 1857-58; Commander Hall, in 1871; the Amundsen expedition of 1905; Sir John Wood's expedition; the expedition party of Admiral Sir George Nares, in 1875; and the expedition of Commander Peary, in 1898 and 1909.

Commander Peary praised the "invention" as he called it, with the statement that he had made his position clear in relation to the Cook controversy. He said that he was not a party to the dispute, but that he was a party to the dispute.

"I shall pay no attention to the false stories of any kind," said Commander Peary. "I am not a party to the dispute, but that he was a party to the dispute."

He said that he was not a party to the dispute, but that he was a party to the dispute.

PRESIDENT'S TOUR.

of the foremost men of the age and was a true friend of Japan. The President proposed the health of the President and led his fellow-countrymen in three resounding "banais." Mr. Taft proposed the health of the Emperor with "banais" which was caught up and echoed by the American guests.

OLD FRIENDS REMEMBERED. Preceding the luncheon the President was introduced to each member of the commission. His hearty words of greeting, his quick recollection of having met many of the visitors during his several visits to Japan, and of little incidents in which they had had a part, seemed completely to captivate them, and each man appeared reluctant to release the President's hand as he passed the informal exchange of compliments.

Mr. Taft also received the ladies of the party, declaring to Baroness Shibumasa that America wanted to see more of the ladies of Japan and to encourage their coming to this country with the men.

"It is not fair," said the President, "that Japan should keep back the most charming of her creatures."

Baron Kanda, a graduate of Amherst, greeted the President as a fellow member of the Phi Upsilon fraternity.

"Well, well," said the President, "we will shake hands again, but we'll just conceal our grip."

To Mr. Del of Osaka the President declared he would return to Japan some day just to see Osaka.

To Dr. T. Kamekura, physician of the Imperial University at Tokyo, President Taft said: "We have a profound admiration for the physicians of Japan. They taught us the way to stamp out the plague. In Manila they taught us to label the rats and by driving them to their holes to wipe out the source of infection. We owe them a lasting debt of gratitude."

When Mr. Iwamoto, a broker of the Osaka stock exchange, was introduced, the President expressed his great interest in the Japanese market methods, and laughingly remarked: "I suppose you have bulls and bears?"

"Oh, yes, sir," replied the broker. "And lambs, too!"

The broker bowed low and passed on. The President's interest in the Japanese market methods, and laughingly remarked: "I suppose you have bulls and bears?"

For Los Angeles to surpass in assessed valuation Cook county, Ill., where Chicago, the metropolis of the Middle West, is located, is astounding, but a fact, and for the Los Angeles Times to have printed during the month of August $6 per cent. more advertising than the Chicago Tribune, another fact, will surprise persons who have not kept posted on the newspaper situation the country over.

The following detailed report shows the aggregate of paid matter printed in the leading paper in each of the several cities named for the month of August, 1933:

And so it is as between the two parties, each of which is for the benefit of the other, if friendly relations continue, and these commercial relations will be maintained, then the country will be benefited by the friendly relations.

WINS RACE.

his first and second races to Baldy.

was the first man to drive a car to the summit yesterday. King reached the mine shortly after 7 o'clock in a Kieselcar. King is now with Shettler, owner of the Apperson.

About thirty minutes have been clipped from the Baldy record each year the race has been run.

Telephone communication was established with the summit of the mountain, where the cars finished, and the time of the racers was taken at each town and important point.

THE START.

Long before daylight a steady procession of automobiles of many kinds began to string out in a rough passage of the San Fernando road, each car carrying a full quota of passengers seeking points of vantage along the tortuous route of the coming race.

As far as the precipitous slides

in Soledad Canyon the excitement seekers rambled, a few cars being run through to Palmdale.

Many touring parties made a night of it on the road, carrying "shock

absorbers" within and under the car.

With "Wild Bill" Russ in the struggle

the watchers were assured thrilling sights. At the most dangerous turns or roughest grades the motors were bunched, and the occupants of the cars climbed to vantage points eagerly awaiting the rear of the racers.

At the start close to a hundred persons, including the officers, seconds of the drivers and mechanics, and lucky spectators unable to reach the start line, were anxiously waiting

the signal which would send the reckless racers to the supreme effort.

Friends of the drivers were on hand to give the men a last grip or word of encouragement.

The cars were lined up at the junction of Popper street and the San Fernando road, about a quarter of a mile from the city limits. Arrangements had been made to secure hot coffee and sandwiches at a corner grocery, and the food purveyors did a handsome business for awhile, for the morning air was sharp and cold.

According to the schedule the first car was to have been sent away at 5 o'clock, but at that hour the dawn was just beginning to break over the Highland hills. It was too dark to permit of a safe getaway. A dense fog lay blanketed on the ground, which quickly disappeared however

Seyfried under the seat. Miraculously the plunging car righted itself, and like a cat, was on its four pins. Both driver and mechanic were thrown several feet from the car. They were assisted to their feet by spectators,

and were taken to Newhall. The car was backed from the road and the course was cleared hastily before the Pope-Hartford, the third and last starter, should come on.

Communications were immediately sent from Newhall to the White gar-

Hitterer quickly manned the fastest scene. It was after 7 o'clock when the accident occurred. By 10 o'clock the rescuers reached the Newhall grade.

Seyfried and Forbes were passed on marvelous escape. Forbes had his

"It's too bad," said Seyfried as he

TAKE THE OTHER NATIONS IN.

Admiral Lord Charles Beresford is an authority on naval affairs who commands world-wide admiration. His declarations at the Pilgrims' Club of the United States were undoubtedly read on Saturday morning with interest by vast numbers of Americans, of his own countrymen in England and of statesmen everywhere.

We are sorry not to be able to give unqualified indorsement to the ideas emanating from this distinguished authority. Lord Beresford's idea is that Great Britain and the United States, by a coalition between their two governments, could establish a convention by which future wars would be made impossible. He is a very rational statesman with an entirely level head upon naval affairs in the main. He sees regretfully the necessity of going on indefinitely multiplying Dreadnoughts and adding in other ways to the naval powers of the various nations of the earth, not for the sake of making war, but for the sake of preserving peace. That is the only reasonable basis on which any person can advocate the building of a warship by any nation upon the earth.

We do not think that it would be for the best interests of the English-speaking nations to enter into any exclusive agreement to preserve the peace of the world. Of course should any nations manifest an obstinate disposition to persist in making wars possible or probable, then the nations with more enlightenment and higher sense of duty and aiming at a higher plane of civilization, whether they speak English, Chinese or Russian, would be justified in forming any kind of a combination which would make for peace. But this is not a matter in which English-speaking people or those speaking any other language can set up any monopoly. The broader the scope of the scheme for international peace the sooner the dream will be realized and the more substantial the basis on which it will rest.

The national idea in statesmanship and civilization is working out in two different and radically opposite directions. The idea of national consolidation along the lines of language, race and location is one of the directions in which we notice this idea working. The other is that outside of this nationalization along lines of language and race there is a much broader national tolerance, a greater disposition to form international combinations for the avoidance of war, for the cultivation of commerce and business, than ever noted before. We are all satisfied that the Germanic people should be consolidated in the great empire, the work of Prince Bismarck. We all sympathize with the aspirations of the Italian people to bring under the control of the Italian crown all the people speaking the Italian language south of the Alps. At the same time it is not in line with the most advanced thought of the day that the English-speaking or the French-speaking people should enter into any combination outside or national, that is of international scope, which would tend to eliminate any other nationality from participation.

By all means let us work with all the force at our command to bring about the time when wars should be no more. Let us work for a court of international arbitration to settle international disputes. Let us aim at the establishing of one great international fact to police the seas and enforce the orders of the international court. But let this work be carried on along the broadest possible lines of international activity. Let us take any people who speak any of the various languages of the earth, all the various races, exclude none, admit all who are willing to join in the excellent work. For the English-speaking people under the government of the British crown and under that of the United States to enter into any exclusive combination in this direction we think would put off and not hasten the dawning of the era of peace for which we all so ardently long. It would look, in fact, like a menace, as if the English-speaking people had it in their minds to compel action one way or the other on the part of the people who did not speak our language. We fail to see what the linguistic factor in the problem has to do with the solving of it anyhow.

IRON AND COAL.

If you want to know how the business of the country is running and to get an insight into it quickly and accurately, study iron and coal.

In 1907, when everything was running full tilt in the United States, the production of pig iron amounted to about 2,200,000 tons each month from January to August. In February of that year the output was but a little over the round 2,000,000 tons. The largest production was in May, 2,295,503 tons.

In 1908, for the same months, January to August, the output ran just a little over 1,000,000 tons. It was scarcely 50 per cent. of the amount turned out in the previous year. The lowest output was in January of that year, 1,045,425 tons, and the highest output was in August, 1,248,841 tons.

If we had gone back to 1906 we would have found approximately the same conditions in this industry as in 1907. The figures are just a little lower, running under 2,000,000 tons a month in three of the eight taken, and over 2,000,000 in the other five.

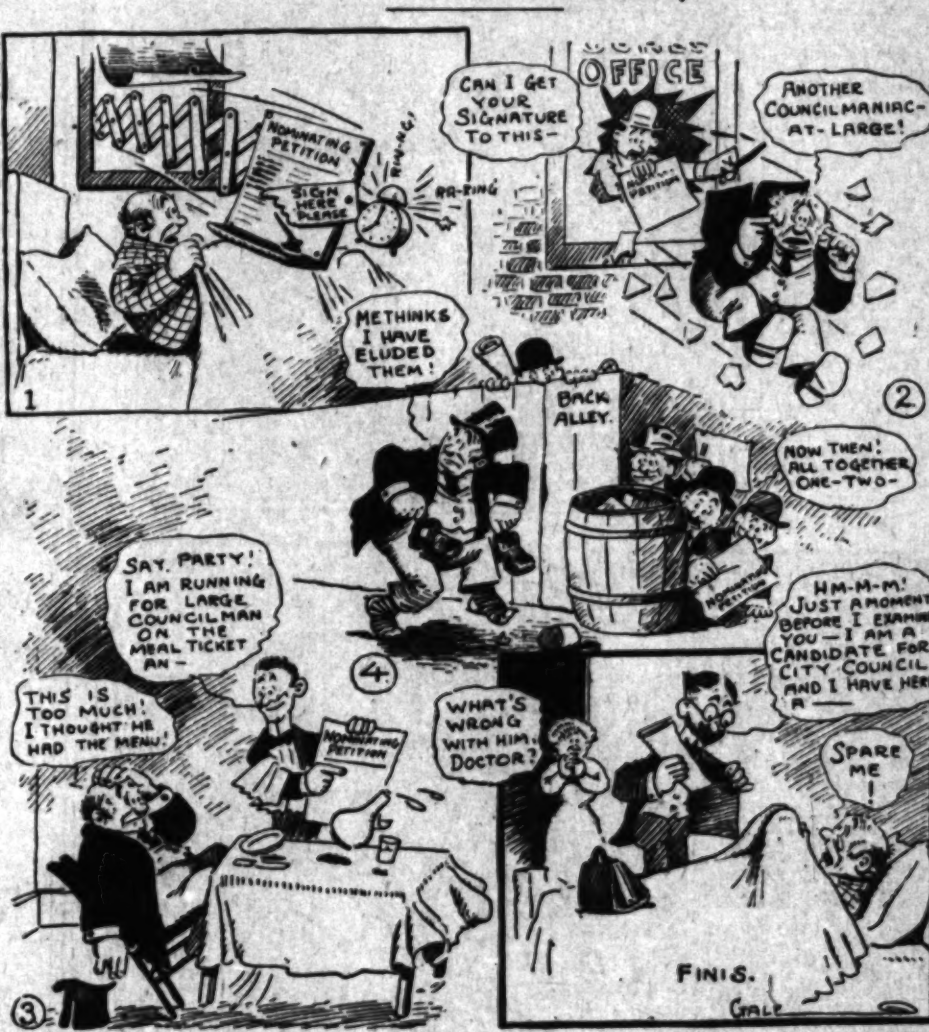

Now turn to the current year. In January, 1909, there was turned out from the furnaces of the country 1,797,560 tons of pig iron. The February output was just a little less, then each month afterward showed an increase over January, culminating in August with 2,246,480 tons, running close to the average of 1907 and being much more than in 1908.

Taking the first month of the depression, November, 1907, when the output fell from 2,336,972 tons in October to 1,728,125 in November, running lower and lower month by month, we find that in July of this year the 2,000,000-ton point was passed, August reaching the figures given above. Now let us turn to coal, and for the sake of condensation we will take the totals, not segregating the output into anthracite and bituminous. We will go back a little farther in this respect so as to get a more comprehensive view of the growth of coal mining in this country. For example, taking the total year 1885, the output of coal was just under 100,000,000 tons. In the next year it was a little over that figure. We find it year by year running into higher figures, the last decade of the century, 1891, opening with an output of a trifle over 150,000,000 tons. Even the depressed condition of business in the following few years only checked the growth and was not marked by any retrograde movement in the output of coal. In 1897 we turned out 196,407,381 tons of coal. The century closed with an output of 240,789,310 tons. In 1907 the output was 428,895,940 tons. But this dropped in the next year, the first of the panic, down to 376,200,000 tons.

The tables for the current year have not been completed, but the technical journals assure us that the output of coal, both anthracite and bituminous, is increasing steadily, and that the increase applies particularly to coking coal. For example, of this latter in 1907 the output was 25,781,361 tons, a little more than that for the previous year. The figures fell in 1908 to below 16,000,000 tons, and, estimating on the daily output of the present time, 1909 will show an output of this kind of coal for the twelve months of 26,450,000 tons, or considerably more than for 1907 or 1908.

Business is not quite normal in spite of the showing in the output of pig iron and coal, even although that indicates the revival of industry most, the anthracite output, overruns the highest former record. The savings banks in Manhattan at the present time hold $35,000,000 in deposits more than a year ago. The savings banks in New York July 1 owed their depositors $766,269,931. This indicates that the slack demand for money induces a great many persons to put their funds in these institutions, where they will draw about 3 per cent. per annum interest.

It is astonishing to note that in Manhattan borough, New York proper, these deposits are in the names of 1,340,841 persons. The figures would seem to indicate that about every household in Manhattan has a savings bank deposit. That is about the way the poor are growing poorer.

DURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

The employment of automobiles for the more rapid collection of mail matter, a plan inaugurated by Postmaster Flint, marks another step in the progress of the development of the mail service. That it will be a success, and point the way to other improvements, is quite certain.

There is probably no department of governmental activities that comes so close to the people as that of the mail, and the record will show that it is surpassed by none in its possibilities for their happiness or in its civilizing effects. It comes nearest being conducted on business principles than any other department, and its history since its inception has been one of continual progress.

The rural mail feature is but thirteen years old, yet today it permeates every portion of the country, and places the country and suburban homes in touch with cities in a manner that cannot be approached by any other agency. It is but a short time since the rural routes were few and isolated, and there were those who did not believe in the success of the experiment, but today it is one of the accomplished facts in the growth of the mail service and there are none to whistle it down the winds. There are now 41,000 routes, and the cost of maintaining them is in excess of $40,000,000 a year.

The rural mail route has revolutionized rural life, and the country homes are no longer isolated, as was the condition until the inauguration of the plan that has done so much for the people. Before that it was the custom for persons living in the country to go to town once a week for their mail; now it is delivered at their doors. With bad roads the weekly trips were often found impossible. Time and space are now almost eliminated. With the rural letter and the telephone all of the bad features of country life have been removed.

The Postoffice Department has never paid in a financial sense. It never will, if it is to be maintained at the highest point of service and excellence. In the delivery and the collection of the mail the government reaches the people more intimately than in any other way. The mail carrier is the daily representative of Uncle Sam, who calls whenever he can ride or walk. No service in which the government is engaged is more profitable to the individual than sending, receiving and distributing the mail. Therefore the system must expand to keep pace with the development of the country and the increase of the population, and the cost must constantly increase. But the people will not complain. They are willing to pay for the splendid service.

ANTI-MILITARISM.

Nearly five years ago a member of the regular staff of The Times, after a careful study of military matters in the west of Europe, wrote home a letter, which appeared in the Sunday Magazine of this journal, in which it was held that the sentiment of the age and the evolution in our civilization tended to the elimination of international wars, and that the reign of peace was on the way and would arrive in time. One of the facts on which the conclusion was based was the widespread antagonism to war in the minds of the common people. The days of slavery and serfdom had passed for the world, and ours is the day of manhood. Kings tottering upon their thrones because of discontent at home can no longer foment a war with some foreign foe in order to kindle the fires of patriotism in the breasts of the people, based largely upon prejudice, and thus save their threatened fortunes. A ruler would find it difficult to stir up a war, even for the purpose of acquisition of foreign territory. Indeed, the sentiment is very widespread that the people of a geographical division of the earth are naturally separated from their neighbors by seas and ranges of mountains, of a fairly concrete race speaking the same language and with the same institutions religious and political, should be permitted to work out their destiny in their own way under their own chosen form of government.

From time to time it is noted that the spread of the anti-militarist feeling is stronger in France than elsewhere. Like every other sentiment comparatively new-born, this tends to carry some people entirely too far. The French socialists declare openly that they would not fight even to drive an invading foe from the soil of France. Of course there is ground for excuse of even the most advanced anti-militarist sentiment in countries like France and Germany. When we realize that in the French republic every able-bodied young man must devote two of the best years of his life to the army, while in Germany the period is three

HOROSCOPES

Monday, September 1, 1914.

BY CHRETE.

Now death a helpful star would seem to be the wise brain that strives to see the aspects of this day.

The sun and Jupiter confer balance, age and honesty on their chosen ones this day.

The generous and the frank will be the good auguries this period.

The signs are excellent for all enterprises as well as principals, agents and other representatives of much more willing than usual.

Employees must be on the alert to show their mettle and capability for proving their worth to employers. Persons seeking employment should be on the alert for the favorable influences of a favor.

Traveling for business or for pleasure.

The ill and ailing may also look for surgeons, physicians, dentists, day, as the healing art is under the sign of Mars today.

It will be a good time to open a new or begin new undertakings.

This period is excellent for any service. It is especially fitting for duties that involve the army, uniform or insignia.

Persons with this horoscope should promise prosperity during the period against quarrel with friends, employers and wages or rambling.

The aspects over children are stout, impassive temperaments that may or be discouraged.

They can then also suit they desire.

MEN AND THINGS OVER.

Wants Constitutional Government.

Grand Duke Adolphus Frederick-Strelitz has offered to sell 10,000,000 marks, that is to say, to the national treasury of his country, who now constitute the majority of the Diet will abandon their grant to the people of a constitution of the other sovereign states of Germany known as the German Empire.

Match Monopoly of Venezuela.

The government of Venezuela has granted a monopoly of the manufacture of matches in the state of Zulia, in the north of the country. This is the only absolute monopoly of the kind in the world.

Flour Industry of Australia.

Flour milling has become a very important industry in Australia. In 1907 there were 200 flour mills in the country,

SEALS SECURE
EVEN BREAK.

Pound Roy Willett Safely in Second Sunday Game.

Loss in Morning Owing to Schaffer's Cleverness.

Fine Fielding and Bingles
Create Excitement.

Vernon, 6; San Francisco, 1. Morning
game.

San Francisco, 5; Vernon, 1. Afternoon
game.

The fact that two different pitchers turned out yesterday and landed in the ditch accounts for the seals and the Tall Stars' double over on the two ball games played, for while there were a number of bingles in the evening game, enough runs were made homeward to win with. As a result of the day, the pennant-winning seals managed to break even on the series, winning three games and tying two. Considering that the seals are supposed to have the close of the league, they were lucky to win three games, not counting the two tie games which would have gone to Vernon but for fatal errors.

The performances yesterday were full of brilliant plays and hard hitting that well repaid the fans who sacrificed the pleasures of a day at the beach to watch the Tall Stars play the leaders to a standstill and the strange part of the whole business is how Chassey Hogan's Vernon team ever dropped down to last place in the pennant race, for although they lost in the afternoon through the weakness of Heaver Willett in the seventh inning, they made the leaders look like the colored Giants in the morning game.

While they showed a number of bingles
in that first contest they served several large crises in the second game, Brown and, on the whole, fielded the ball as if Frank Chance and Fred Clarke were sitting in the grand stand trying to learn how ball games could be won, and picking out players for the Cubs and Pirates. Coy, Brachear, Halsey and Mott did some very pretty work, while Rival's throwing to the plate from center field was all that any one could ask for.

Mundorf opened the fourth inning with a hard double to right and advanced on Berry's sacrifice bunt in front of the plate. With the seals two runs to the good, a man on third and but one out, Mundorf's double batted to the center of the field, and to the batter's confusion, the fans, slanted out a long fly to deep center field.
Of course Stoval caught it, and then by a wonderful throw to Hogan's doubled out Mundorf at the plate, no better or more perfect play having been shown here this season. This batter cut off one run and Stoval stopped another one about the same way in the next inning. Brown started the fifth by walking, advanced to second when Mohr was hit by a pitched ball, and when he tried to score from second on Miller's hard swat to center, Stoval threw him out at the plate. In addition to these strong-arm exhibitions, Stoval had four outs and was one of the big features of the game.

Brashear also electrified the fans with a left-handed stab of a hard liner from Yount's bat in the sixth inning and Halsey ran far back of third base to catch Zeider's pop fly, then he dashed things keeping the fans busy from beginning to end.

The seals started off with Schaffer if they wanted to win the game in the first inning. Red Davis smashed the ball to left and when Martineau booted it, Red continued to second base, and then to third on Mohr's safe bunt toward third base and scored on Miller's sealer's choice to Mott, which Davis sent to the plate. In any event
Davis walked, ran to third on Mohr's slam to right and scored on Zeider's swat to center.

Browning started with his old-time form, and for three innings Coy was the only Vernon player to reach first,
and he got there on the second of his single, but in the fourth things began to drop. Martineau and Brashear hit safety to left and Martineau hit scored on Coy's double over first base.
Hogan fanned at the start of the fifth,
and then Schaffer and Stoval hit to right. Both advanced on Halsey's sacrifice, and both scored in Martineau's fine smash to right. It was in the sixth inning, however, that the seals were shown up, for either the Tennant part of them.

ANGELS SHAKE
UP SENATORS.

GRAB ANOTHER GAME THROUGH DOYLE'S BAD ERROR.

Two Runs Score When He Permits
Bat to Get Away from Him in Seventh Inning—Heav Fine
Bat, Allowing But Four Hits and Driving Out a Triple.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The crippled Angels, revived in Sacramento, won the series from the Senators today as they grabbed the fourth game of six played by a score of 3 to 2. As a result of the local team's defeat Sacramento fans are clamoring for the release of Doyle, who is a growler by Howard through him in the seventh. Two men scored although the battle did not compare with yesterday's contest for real baseball, several exciting features developed. It was a pitcher's battle from the start, but the rugged work by Doyle took the class from the game and relegated it to a cheap exhibition.
Both pitchers were in great form. Hoop having a shade over Fitzgerald, who was better than usual. After being battered for his that ran into double figures earlier in the week, Dustin Far-nham's double lightened up and allowed four for the second time.

Some great fielding by Godwin and Daley in the outer territory and Darringer's fast work on the third sack
for the local team sent to the affair.
There was much to say in favor of the game until Doyle's bungle.

Lula Koster of yesterday, Hoop would have reached first on a right field poka, but died at third because of poor base running. Otherwise Hoop's job would have been good for two. The dark-haired twirler smote the sphere with two down and put Fitzgerald where the wind got at him.
Daley, however, got the ball to go to the center fielder started for second on an anticipated double steal and Hoop was

nham's double lightened up and allowed

TAKES ISSUE WITH PINCHOT.

Attorney Short of Fresno Addresses Forester.

Writes Open Letter on the Water Power Case.

Questions Right of Bureau to Settle Matter.

Referring to the Pinchot-Ballinger controversy and the differences of opinion regarding the conservation of natural resources, particularly the matter of regulating water in the national forest reserves, all of which was brought up and discussed at Spokane during the seventeenth convention of the National Irrigation Congress in July, Attorney Frank H. Short of Fresno has addressed to Forester Pinchot an open letter under date of the 18th inst.

Mr. Short was a delegate from California to the Irrigation Congress and was a member of the Resolutions Committee. He also made a speech from the floor of the convention regarding power control using mountain streams for the development of electrical power. Mr. Short is attorney for a number of the largest power companies on the Pacific Coast, and in that capacity was assisted by Pinchot and his assistants who estimated that Short has no regard for the public welfare. This claim at himself and the corporation he represents brought out Short's mealy letter, from which the following are excerpts:

"Upon several different occasions you have spoken in the West concerning the policies of the Forestry Department and always with reference to the controversy between the power companies and others concerning rights of way and the appropriation and use of water for public purposes within forest reserves."

"In nearly all of these addresses you have complained of the attitude of the power companies and other interests and have asserted that the questions involved should be discussed in the open. Therefore, this letter is addressed to you as an open and public letter."

"You have frequently referred to my impression that a great controversy is pending before the next Congress and expressing your belief that the policies which you advocate are really designed in the interests of the people and will tend to keep the beneficial use of water, including the production of electricity, within their control."

"In other words, shall the people of the respective localities and through their State and subordinate governmental agencies be permitted to regulate and control the use of water within their respective districts, or shall this responsibility and be handed over to the department of the Federal government now held by yourself?"

"In the first place, can this transfer of power to the Federal government be subject to constitutional limitations, and if not, should it be done anyway?"

"Secondly, can this particular public service be performed for the various States and the people of the United States better through the Bureau of Forestry or some other department of the Federal government? If it can be done better by the States and the local subdivisions thereof, acting through the people themselves?"

"In the first place, you have noticed that you have thought it necessary to practically all of your addresses to assure the public that was not the intention of the Federal government itself to embark in the business of generating and distributing power."

"The fact that you have thought it necessary to give the public this assurance would seem to indicate better than almost anything else how far we may be drifting from the American scheme of government, in which the relations of the nation, the States and the people to each other."

"The United States government, engaged in the manufacturing and distribution of power would entirely reverse our system of government, including taxation and the regulation and control of public utilities."

"CANNOT BE TAXED."

"In fact, except in so far as the government chooses to regulate itself, the people would be powerless to regulate any of these matters, including the imposition of taxes. It is settled that the United States government and its property cannot be taxed by the States."

"If the government is engaged in the power business, these great sources of State and local revenue and taxation would be entirely cut off. As matters now stand the companies for developing power are the subjects and servants of the people, subject absolutely to the regulation and control of the State and local governments, including the fixing of rates and the regulation, direction and continuance of the service which they render. This right and sovereign power, with respect to the beneficial uses of water, is being very largely and very efficiently in most instances enjoyed and exercised by the people of the States."

"Allow me, in a friendly spirit, to call attention to your position. It has never before, to my knowledge, been true that an officer of an executive department of the Federal government has found it compatible with his position or duties to go out in a public political capacity to discuss matters in this way as to lead those who agree with him and denounce those who oppose him."

"Much less has it ever been done or thought of that such an official, having under his official oath to decide fairly and impartially between all citizens, whether rich or poor, great or small, might go out and bid for favor and power by declaring his undying allegiance to one class and his perpetual hostility to another."

be absorbed and their vital resources exhausted by this greatest of all the octopus family.

"Allow me, Mr. Pinchot, to suggest that if the people of the West have no powers, resources or defense, within themselves or elsewhere, except in a subordinate branch of a department of the Federal government, that they had quite as well abandon hope. This is a government of law and not of men. At least it used to be, and some of us believe it still is."

"CONCERNING REGULATION."

"While a great deal has been prophesied and promised as to regulation of local monopolies by your particular bureau of the Federal government, nobody has had the temerity to assert or pretend that under our scheme of government that such department has any relation whatever to the existence or non-existence of monopolies."

"If the people cannot govern themselves, if they have neither the power, nor the capacity, nor the ability to discern a monopoly when they see it, or to regulate it after they do understand it, then volunteers unknown to the law are needed."

"It has a reassuring and an abiding belief, not only that this government is fundamentally sound, but that it is founded upon principles that are eternally right, but that acting under such functions the people, through the devices of government, are able to ultimately protect themselves from all sources of oppression and power whether by monopolies or bureaus."

"I am also frankly of the opinion that volunteers and agencies of government having no such powers or functions under the Constitution, or the laws, can do no harm to the harm in the consumption of time, in the diverting of attention and in an abortive pretense of doing what they have no possible power to accomplish."

"The question, and the whole question, is, has the Bureau of Forestry, under the law, any power, right or authority to determine any question except questions that relate and pertain directly to the public lands and as to whether or not the local necessities and needs are being exercised and enjoyed in a way not unnecessarily to interfere with or impair the value of these lands?"

"The pretense that the Federal government or any branch of it should study into or decide upon or regulate any local industry or business, or a pretense only, and under our form of government has no shadow of foundation. No act of Congress, much less an executive order, can ever convey these powers to the Federal government or deprive the people of the States and the people of the communities, the States and their undoubted constitutional power, function and duty to regulate and control their own business, their own resources, their own public services and their own monopolies."

"THE 'SMALL MAN'."

"I notice your constant reference to yourself as the friend of the 'small man' and the 'little fellow'. You have often noticed that the most ardent friend of the poor man and the small man in using his friendship in a political way is a man who has never been small or poor. Therefore, I cannot compete with you along these lines, because I happen to have been born small, and among western people, and have stayed reasonably poor, reasonable small and contented in the position of the people of the West. Few men have traveled more or studied harder than I have in the effort to understand the resources of the West and the people and their real interests. And if I thought your policies were in their interests, and that my employment interfered with the interests of the people, I would at once resign and advocate your cause. I am one of your 'poor small men', but not quite unemployed, but believing in our scheme of government and believing that local self-government in its elementary and direct sense through the people themselves is essential to the perpetuity of the Republic, I am for it."

"AS TO THROWING STONES."

"It is always well, before throwing stones, to study the structure of our own house, and when you intimate that the bias of those who represent opposing interests may be carried into conventions, is it not equally possible that you, as the industrious promoter of a new policy and zealous and enthusiastic therein, in the extreme, desiring to secure revenue for the direct benefit of your department, desiring to take over and exercise powers in substitution for those now exercised and enjoyed by the State and the people of local communities, might yourself unwittingly be slightly warped and biased and speak from interest and not from the broad and comprehensive view of a citizen having only in mind the general welfare?"

"Your most persistent and apparently important assertion and apprehension is that there is in process of formation a great and all-comprehensive power trust, and inferentially, unless your department of the government saves the people of the States and local communities, that they will be absorbed and their vital resources exhausted by this greatest of all the octopus family.

"Allow me, Mr. Pinchot, to suggest that if the people of the West have no powers, resources or defense, within themselves or elsewhere, except in a subordinate branch of a department of the Federal government, that they had quite as well abandon hope. This is a government of law and not of men. At least it used to be, and some of us believe it still is."

PRECAUTIONS.

RABID "REDS" ARE WATCHED.

President Will Be Closely Guarded Here.

Local Secret Service Head Specially Detailed.

Detective Browne Tells of Service With Taft.

Though the President may not be appraised of it, two local men, one of whom has acted as bodyguard to a chief executive, will be on the lookout for his safety during his visit in this city, October 11-12.

George W. Hazen, head of the secret service of the Southwest, with headquarters in Los Angeles, was one of the bodyguards to the late President Cleveland one summer, at Bussard's Bay. Samuel L. Browne, chief detective to the District Attorney, was personally responsible for Mr. Taft's safety when he was secretary of War, visited the Philippines in the fall of 1907.

The secret service agents do not go into particulars in regard to their special assignments, but it is believed that Hazen has had his men making investigations for weeks, in anticipation of the arrival of the President. It is probable that similar precautions have been taken at every event since the visit of the President to the Philippines in the fall of 1907.

It is probable that similar precautions have been taken at every event since the visit of the President to the Philippines in the fall of 1907.

These travel just ahead of the President's study conditions and consult with the chief of police in the city en route. One object is to ascertain if any anarchists are congregating in any of the places to be visited. Incidentally, there is a close watch kept on notorious criminals.

President Taft is accompanied by secret service agents whose duty it is to guard his person. When he rides through the streets at least one of these cool-headed men sits beside the driver. At receptions and audiences one or more agents are close to him.

It is well known that many persons of weak mentality are roused to frenzy by the sight of a public character, and are willing to take desperate chances in order to attack a representative of the government.

FEW EXCITABLE "REDS."

There are a few excitable Mexican "reds" in the city who hate the President of the United States almost as much as they do President Diaz. This was shown at meetings of the "reds," held here when Magon, Villareal and Rivera were in custody. The names of Roosevelt and Diaz were alike greeted with hisses, and all kinds of bloody threats were made by the inflamed agitators.

Chief of Police Dismann will send his detectives through the crowds to gauge the temper of suspicious persons. Desperate characters will be arrested or warned to leave town. Professional pickpockets, too, will be closely watched.

During the President's drive about the city, mounted police, picked for their skill with the revolver, may be called upon to guard the President. The National Guard will be employed in keeping the streets clear, and will act in conjunction with the police.

CLAYLAND'S GUARD.

Hazen and several associates were detailed to guard Mr. Cleveland at the late President's summer home at Bussard's Bay. There was no reason to expect that danger, but every precaution was taken. Mr. Cleveland was very averse to any kind of surveillance, and the secret service operators had to work without his knowledge, though Mr. Cleveland knew the men who were guarding him.

The agents work unobtrusively and keep in the background as much as possible. They are not only on guard against dangerous persons, but must also be ready at all times to prevent accidents.

Detective Browne at once rendered his services when he learned that President Taft would visit Los Angeles. He was assigned to guard his work as special agent in the Philippines, which was remembered at Washington.

MISS SYDNEY FORD.

From the rainbow season in past, when colors, if you please, but faded and sober black rule in fashion, I simply "plunge" on black.

Black has been "out" for the past six years but this season the turn of events and the demand for black is simply amazing. I could find in the market a black dress for $10.00. Two-fold Message.

"A Two-fold Message" was the topic

on which Rev. Arthur A. Phelps, D.D.,

spoke at Central Baptist Church yesterday morning in preparation for the August meetings, which are to be held for the next three weeks in the great hall at Twelfth and Hoover streets. Taking as his text I Timothy,

1:15: "Faithful is the saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ

Jesus came into the world to save sinners," the preacher said:

"His and his message are the oldest and newest words in the language, as old as the first sinner, and as modern as the last one. When a young man starting out in the ministry, began to preach on personal obligation, civilization, individual responsibility, etc., a good citizen called him a social reformer. 'No one will want you as a pastor' said the young man. 'What do you want me to preach about?'

"The ordinary attitude toward sin," he said, "is that it is a thing which everybody is wrong but me. That is the attitude of the masses. They conceive of sin as a thing which is done by some one else. They do not understand that sin is a thing which Schooner Emma of San Diego.

Flat-bottom boat with sails on hull, in which adventurous mariner has left California for Cocos Island in search of mythical wealth.

SAIL ON A CRAZY CRAFT TO HUNT FOR TREASURE.

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 19.—Capt. A. C. Johnston, who sailed in the two-masted schooner Emma to hunt for the mythical wealth of Cocos, Henderson and Cooper islands, off the west coast of Costa Rica. He thinks he will succeed where so many have failed.

Johnston, who is a ship captain, is a Scotchman. He built his 18-foot boat himself in an eccentric manner, and the "blasted tub," as he calls the Emma, acts eccentrically when she is placed under the wind.

TRAGEDY. COLTON WOMAN TAKES POISON. DENIED FORGIVENESS SWALLOWS CARBOLIC ACID.

Unfaithful Wife, Who Ran Away to Redondo Beach With Young Man, Pleads With Husband to Be Taken Back and When He Refuses She Commits Suicide.

Colton, Sept. 19.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Nancy Pritchett, aged 44, committed suicide at her home this morning by taking carbolic acid.

The woman disappeared three weeks ago on a young man aged 20, a friend of the family. A small son of the woman accompanied the pair.

Later Herbert Pritchett, the husband, an employee of the Globe Mills, went to Redondo and returned with his son. He then filed a suit for divorce.

Mrs. Pritchett came back to Colton yesterday and pleaded with her husband to take her back. He refused, and this morning, after he went to work, she swallowed the poison. A grown son called in medical aid, but the woman died in a short time.

METHODISTS CELEBRATE. Anaheim Congregation Welcomes in Its Remodeled Church—Presbyterian Pastor to Be Married.

ANAHEIM, Sept. 19.—The Methodists of this city today celebrated the close of an exceptional year in their history. At 11 a.m. they dedicated their remodeled church, the sermon being preached by Rev. G. F. Board, president of the University of Southern California.

Pastor Moore spoke on "The Multifold Christ." This was the last service of the church before its dedication.

Rev. F. W. Mitchell, pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, will be married in Santa Ana tomorrow afternoon to Miss Daisy Swedberg, who has been teaching in the Fullerton schools for three years.

For the week ending today six carloads of sweet potatoes and two of "grapes" were shipped from this city to Los Angeles. There is a slight decrease in the price of sweet potatoes, but the market is not so active as it was two weeks ago.

Heavy shipments of chili peppers and tomatoes are being made from Garden Grove daily.

HUSKY PLAYERS THEY MUST BE.

Men Wanted for Band at Patton Hospital.

Muscular Musicians Are Desired for the Concerts Which Are to Be Given Here Frequently Than Herebefore. Men Institutions—More Entertainment for the Patients.

Social affairs are to take place frequently at the Southern California State Hospital at Patton this winter. Some husky musicians are wanted there.

F. Hardstone, director of the hospital band, is in Los Angeles hiring bandmen, so that concerts and dances can be given more often for the entertainment of the patients.

When the State Hospital was built a beautiful band stand was erected on the front lawn. For three years this little pagoda has been unattended except by an occasional inmate who took some of the band's instruments.

But there are to be new buildings erected on the grounds. Hardstone, who is an attendant as well as band leader, has permitted the husky musical men as guards for the new buildings. His request was granted, and he has come to Los Angeles looking for material.

He wants bandmen, but he wants the right kind. The thing, like the following, is to be a band of husky men, long hair wouldn't do at all, in the first place, one of them wouldn't stand much of a chance if an inmate ever got a thistle on his arm.

The players will have to subject themselves to physical tests, such as running, jumping, and the like. If they are good musicians, the much the better for the music live in their fingers it must collaborate with the Marquis of Queensbury muse as well.

Some of the applicants yesterday at Mr. Hardstone's rooms in the Royal Hotel were dismissed on sight. They might be able to play, but they didn't have the right kind of a soul.

A concert will be given Friday afternoon of each week. We have not selected the program yet. Every Friday night there will be a dance for the patients. The inmates are fine dancers. Only those who are really controlled and allowed to participate in the dance at each end of the hall are thrown out and the women inmates with the attendants enter and take the one end and the men at the other.

"Attendants and patients waits for the dance. The dance is a good deal together a good deal. There is never any trouble except occasionally a woman gets into a row with a man, and then there is a little argument. We expect to get a good band and furnish a lot of entertainment for the patients."

FREE DELIVERY. CUPID POPS OUT OF MAIL BAGS. WEDDING TO BE CULMINATION OF POSTOFFICE ROMANCE.

Former Inspector, Now Assistant United States District Attorney, to Wed Young Woman Who Was Recently Official of Uncle Sam at Ocean Park.

Miss Alice Vaughn Dietrich, until a few days ago assistant in the Ocean Park postoffice, will marry Frank C. Stewart, former United States District Attorney, Wednesday evening, at the residence of Maj. and Mrs. Henry Porter Schofield in Ocean Park.

The wedding will be the culmination of a romantic courtship. Mr. Stewart was formerly a postal inspector. The two met in the postoffice at Ocean Park.

Miss Dietrich had full charge of the office for some time, and she found it pleasant to receive suggestions from the experienced inspector and their acquaintance ripened into a strong friendship.

Some time later Mr. Stewart was appointed an assistant in the office of the United States District Attorney. He continued his frequent visits to the beach and finally moved to Ocean Park.

A few days ago, Miss Dietrich blushing offered her resignation. The authorities at Washington were informed that a young lady had performed her duties in a very satisfactory manner, but that Cupid had lured her away from Uncle Sam's service.

Mr. Stewart, who is a native of Washington, D. C., and a brother of the late Postmaster-General Henry C. Payne, was appointed to his present position in the United States District Attorney's office in 1907.

Before coming south, Stewart graduated from the University of Oregon law school and was admitted to the bar.

In April, 1908, Oscar Lawler, then United States District Attorney for this district, appointed the inspector to a position in his office. When Mr. Lawler went to Washington to assume his duties as Assistant Attorney-General, Mr. Stewart succeeded him.

After the wedding, the couple will go to a trip to the Coast and Rio Grande. The "Home Sweet Home" of the couple will be in the Rio Grande.

AUTO SOMERSAULT. Girl Guides Big Car That Turns Twice Over in the Air at Ringling Show.

The double-somersaulting automobile act, will be seen in Los Angeles with Ringling Brothers' circus tomorrow and Wednesday.

The act is performed by a young French girl named Marie. The heavy car with the gritty young woman at the wheel plunges down a steep incline with lightning speed. An expert driver on the runway where it turns two complete somersaults before alighting on the runway.

Perhaps not so spectacular, but nevertheless just as wonderful, is the performance of the Mexican trio of strong men. One of these three giants claims he is as strong as Samson, and those who have seen the act would be willing to take his word rather than dispute his extravagant statement. He, alone, lifts a weight of a ton and a half.

Other wonders under the big tents are the Schuman performing horses that wait on their hind legs, drink from big glasses and roll each other around in huge bear barrels.

The taxidermy horses, Holldelide the wire wizard, the telephoning elephants and the Lerch family of acrobats, are still other surprises.
